CLARA MORRIS' TORTURES.

It is known that Clara Morris suffered much before leaving for Europe, and even during her last series of performances many times she was carried fainting from the stage, and recovered only by the strength of a mighty will, which impelled her to the conscientious performances of what she had undertaken. Her disease was more distressing. It was curvature of the spine. originating in privation in childhood, and rooted by want of the proper attention and treatment in later years. Three years ago it could probably have been arrested, but it was a crisis in her profession, and upon success in surmounting many obstacles her whole future seemed to depend. Naturally, also, her friends as well as herself failed to realize the profoundly serious nature of her troubles, and that complete recovery would follow intervals of rest and the various methods of treatment recommended by attending physicians. During the past summer, however, the development of the disease has been rapid. A sea voyage failed entirely to produce any change for the better, and the fiat of the highest medical authorities abroad confirmed her worst fears, and condemned her to a terrible operation, the same to which Chas. Summer submitted for the cure of the same discase. A private letter written from Paris by a friend who stood by and saw the terrible trial, is printed in the Wash ngton Capital: 11 RUE DE LA BIENFAISANCE,) Paris, Aug. 12, 1875 well as I am able under the circumstances, of the terrible trial to which our dear little friend has been subjected. As Professor Ball concurred in the opinion given by Dr. Belvin, that the disease of the spine would, if not arrested, terminate fatally within two years, she determined to submit to the treatment that it makes me adder to think of. She said only, "Let me have it at once; don't let me think of it;" and last Tuesday we drove to the Doctor's than usual. She conversed less than common, and in fits and starts, and, strange to say, of the most trivial things we saw upon our way. Arriving at Dr. Belvin's we were approved at not finding Prof. Ball there, and had to wait for him nearly half an hour. All the while our poor friend sat with her hands clasped between her knees, saying at interval, "If they keep me waiting I shall fail. I koow I shall fail.' At last the Professor was announced, and then fifteen more minutes were given to preparations in an adjoining room. Clara had stipulated that she should not see the furnace por the irons, and it cost the physicians some trouble and labor to comply with her wishes.

We were at last summoned to enter, and nothing was visible but the low chair in which the victim was to sit and the two operators. Dr. Belvin is a man not over thirty live, with a clear blue eye, blonde head, and rather kind expression of face. -Prof. Ball is about sixty, with prominent hooked nose, small gray eyes, and of less than the medium he ght. It may have been the circumstances, but he looked to me the beau ideal of an inquisitor of the Spanish inquisition, well deserving the title given him in Paris among medical men of "the butcher," on account of his terrible and frequent operations.

Poor Clara was obliged to sit on a low chair with her back bared, and sire went through the operation quiet enough, but with her face pale and rigid as marble. The only evidence beyoud this was the pitiful trembling of her poor little hands. She spoke calmly, however, requesting me to hold her head, not her hands, and as she sat looking up at me as if to read my face what was going on behind her, I beheve I suffered the more of the two.

Then Dr. Belvin lit his furnace, and the rearing of the flame that was to heat the iron to a white heat in a few seconds was dreadful to hear; and while this was going on Prof. Ball marked with a pencil the line the iron was to tollow on either side of the spine. Every touch of the pencil sent a thrill through the delicate frame of the poor victim; but the Professor had searcely ended making the pencil marks when, with a flash, the iron was applied. It was dreadful. The white point seemed to sink an inch into the quivering form, with that sickening sound of burning flish; but beyond a writhing of the body, accompanied by deep, heavy breathing, there was no response-not a shrick, not a sign or groan. The doctor had nearly completed his dreadful task when Clara, suddenly starting up, cried out in a voice that even moved Prof. Ball:

"My God, I cannot, cannot bear it." It was all over, however, and do you know she helped replace her clothes after the wounds were dressed, and walked calmly down to the carriage. The doctors said it was a wonderful exhibit of nerve. She is quite prostrated today, and suffers from a violent pain in her head but the doctor says it is all right, and she will be up and well soon. I forgot to say that she was urged to have the operation performed while under the influence of chloroform, but positively refused.

Since writing the above, Dr. Barker, of New York, who happens to be here on a visit, has been called in consultation with Professor Ball and Dr. Belvin. I will write you the result as soon as I hear it.

Yours. It is not very long since an association of soldiers who fought under the First Napoleon used to appear in the streets of Paris on great occasions. Perhaps there is still a remnant of these veteraus left, although we have heard nothing about them since the downfall of the Empire. When the late Emperor wanted to arouse the enthusiasm of the Parisian populace a parade of the troops was ordered, and these hoary old soldiers were always given the place

RICHMOND, July 27, 1874. The Xanthine is the only hair dressing 1 have ever used which has removed the dandruff from the scalp and made my hair soft and pliable. It has also restored my hair to its natural color; and by occasionally using it as a hair dressing, I have no doubt it will preserve the color. E. T. BAIRD.

]From Rev. Charles H. Head, D. D., Pastor Grace street Presbyterian Church,]

RICHMOND, July 20, 1874. At the suggestion and presentation of a friend, I have used one bottle of Prof. Hertz's Hair Restorative, "Xanthine." It has accomplished in a very brief time and without any perceptible unpleasant or injurious effects, all that is claimed to the professional statement of the profession of the profe for it as a restorer of the natural color of hair turning gray. CHAS. H. READ.

[From J. W. Lockwood, Cashier, National Bank of Virginia.]
RICHMOND, VA., June 25, 1874.

Dear Sir—I used on my hair about one third of a bottle of the Xanthine, and the result has been its restoration to its original color. J. W. LOCK WOOD.

To the Proprietor of the "Xanthine:" I have occasionally used your compound, known as "Xanthine," with results perfectly satisfactory as to cleaning the scalp, strengthening the hair and restoring its color.

Respectfully yours. WM. B. ISAACS,

FERTILIZERS.

EXCELLENZA

I have been selling this Standard Fertilizer for the past four years, and can recommend it with entire confidence as a first class article.

The material of which it is composed is of a durable character, and furnishes all the necessary plant food for the cultivation of Wheat, Tobacco and Garden Vegetables.

IT IS IN FINE DRY POWDER, READY FOR DRILLING, its mechanical condition being equal to that of any Fertilizer in this or any other market.

PRICE $48 PER TON OF 2000 LBS.

FOR SALE BY

THOS. PERRY. 17 King street.

CLARKE'S AMMONIATED

This highly esteemed Manure, which has given such general satisfaction for several years in the counties of Loudoun and Fairfax, has been greatly improved in quality and mechanical condition.

I sold largely of it during the last Spring season, and have yet to hear of a single complaint of its action. Price $45 per ton of 2000 lbs. For sale by
